As you are aware, there is an international trend towards Work Based Learning (WBL) in vocational education and training and even in higher education and adult education. EU policy documents increasingly emphasise the importance of apprenticeships, traineeships and other forms of WBL, focussing on the need to foster cooperation between education and business. The monitoring seminar will improve the exchange of information and knowledge across national boundaries. Learning lessons emerging from projects can make it easier to mainstream results and findings into national and European policies on education and training. The main objectives are:

- Content monitoring in order to improve quality at individual project level
- Clustering of projects into thematic groups to gain an overview of project content
- Facilitate exchange of experience between project actors and improve the quality and impact at individual project level
- Strengthen the networking between projects, practitioners and decision makers
- Increase impact at programme level.

The event will offer a programme of activities allowing open dialogue. Parallel working forums will enable direct interactions among participants. The main aim of the debate is to identify common challenges and major barriers, share examples of interesting practice, develop practical solutions in WBL, identify needs and gaps and outline the political relevance. Furthermore, a project market place will be organised.

Expected results:

- learn from good practices demonstrated across the EU
- utilize an opportunity to disseminate the results of successful projects and programmes
- meet peers and share what works and what doesn't and identify synergies and ways of working together to help in future work
- meet and network with relevant stakeholders in the field
- be part of a key EU policy development.
